FOXWALK OVERLAY DISTRICT DESIGN GUIDELINES UPDATE

Building, Zoning and Economic Development (BZE) Committee

November 15, 2023

PURPOSE OF FOXWALK OVERLAY DISTRICT DESIGN GUIDELINE

What is the FoxWalk Overlay District?

- One of the City's historic overlay districts.
- Approved by City Council in 1993.
- Promotes and guides redevelopment of downtown buildings and vacant lots while protecting its character as a historic center city.
- Per the Aurora Zoning Ordinance, each overlay district is required to have design guidelines.
- The FoxWalk Design Guidelines represent appropriate design standards that fit the context, character, and intended physical appearance of Aurora's historic downtown.
- Design Guidelines support recommendations from the City's planning documents, like the Downtown Master Plan and the Riverfront Vision Plan.

PURPOSE OF FOXWALK OVERLAY DISTRICT DESIGN GUIDELINE

Approved in 1993 and last updated in 2008, the FoxWalk Overlay District Design Guidelines grew out of a 30+ year collaborative effort to draft a series of plans and regulations to guide the design and redevelopment of Downtown Aurora.

This decades-long process included the following elements that informed the 2008 Design Guidelines:

- Creation of the FoxWalk Overlay District, encompassing the Downtown Core (DC) and Downtown Fringe (F) zoning districts
- Design guidelines for the restoration of existing structures
- Design and development guidelines for new sites and buildings
- Design specifications for the FoxWalk

PURPOSE FOR THE UPDATE

About 15 years later, the original 2008 FoxWalk Overlay District Design Guidelines is undergoing an update process intended to:

- Provide clarity on the City's design expectations
- Respond to significant changes to certain sites and roadways
- Be more equitable to people of all abilities and transportation choice
- Provide guidelines that respond to relevant and emerging topics in urban planning and design
- Support redevelopment efforts in Downtown Aurora

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

As part of the City of Aurora's process to update the 2008 FoxWalk Overlay District Design Guidelines, the community was engaged for their input through different activities, including an open house in the spring, interactive web-based comment map, interactions with stakeholders, and meetings with the FoxWalk Design Review Committee. Community feedback plays a key role in informing the updated design guidelines to ensure they meet community expectations, ideas, and concerns.

A compiled summary of community comments from the open house and comment map is provided on the right.
