No	No Did the presence of a mobile food unit have a positive impact on your business?	No	No	No	No	We have been approached many times to have a mobile food truck use our space. They have always been denied by the city. I feel it would be a great opportunity for our business as well as the neighborhood and could bring some excitement to the neighborhood

Yes	No Yes		Yes	No	Yes	I had rented a spot to a truck in which it helped draw customers into our store. Also I believe if a truck does not have items same as brick and mortar it could help bring customers regularly to a spot which has many offerings. The truck we had in our lot had tacos and it did not compete with Dairy Queen which is our closest restaurant. I would think it could help them more than hurt them.

Yes	No	No	No	No	Yes	Mobile businesses are an innovative way to reach customers but can impede operations of nearby businesses. With proper distance, consult or even partnership with local businesses (for example: present your food purchase receipt and get 15% off your purchase at "XYZ")—the presence of mobile businesses would be more warmly welcomed.
